HOME FOR LEPEERS

AN INSTITUTION IN LOUISIANA
WHERE DISEASE IS CURED.

In View of Increasing Number of Cases Throughout Country a Movement is on Foot to Make it a National Home for Lepers.

"Can leprosy be cured?" is a question which apparently has been answered by a refuge for lepers in Louisiana in the affirmative, and there are indications that within a few years the United States will have a national home for the treatment of the dread disease.

There is now only one place on this continent where the leper may find a refuge and a home that will afford him all the necessary comforts of life. This home is situated in the state of Louisiana, in Iberville parish, on a large tract of land bordering the Mississippi river, and in ante-bellum days was called Indian camp plantation.

The same name still clings to the estate, but instead of an old-fashioned plantation house, with its barns and stables and negro quarters and its fields green with cane or white with cotton, there is the attractive administration building remodeled from the ancient plantation "big house," and clustered about a number of low, roomy modern brick structures which serve as sleeping quarters and treatment rooms for the patients.

This is the leper house of the state of Louisiana, directly under state oversight and governed by a board of control. Here for the last few years Dr. Isadore Dyer, consulting leprologist, and Dr. Ralph Hopkins, visiting physician, have struggled to cure the disease, and slowly but surely they have demonstrated, they declare, that if it be taken in hand before the last stages have been reached, leprosy, by means of a certain course of treatment, may be eradicated from the body.

Since 1894 there have been admitted to the home 101 patients. Of this number three have been discharged as cured, 40 have died, 14 have absconded—that is, run away from the home—and 44 remain at Indian Camp.

Of the three cases discharged the first was that of a boy admitted in October, 1902, at the age of 13. He was discharged December 7, 1904, as cured, and has been kept under observation ever since. Reports show that there has been no return of any evidence of the disease.

The second case was that of a woman admitted August 10, 1900, at the age of 50, and discharged cured December 19, 1905. There has been no evidence of a recurrence of the disease in her case. This patient was kept 18 months under observation after lesions had disappeared before she was discharged from the home.

The third case was that of a woman admitted June 2, 1904, at the age of 30 years, and discharged April 20, 1906, cured. She was kept at the home more than a year under observation after the lesions had disappeared.

Eight of the patients now at the home show a type of arrested disease, with no active lesions and no evidence of the disease except pigmentation. Of this number at least six are now under observation, with a view to their discharge after a reasonable period of freedom from the disease. This is the triumph of medical science at the Louisiana state leper home, but it is only the beginning. It represents many years of toil and self-denial on the part of public spirited citizens, attending physicians, and last, but probably greatest of all, the Sisters of Charity who have devoted their lives to ministering to the lepers.

The treatment which has accomplished such wonderful results consists, it is said, in administering ichthyol, chlorate of potash, strychnine, salicylate of soda, chaulmugra oil and arsenic. The best results seem to follow the treatment with chaulmugra oil and strychnine, the three patients discharged as cured having had this course.

The method of treatment is largely one of nutrition, it being known that if a resistance can be established in the individual patient the disease will disappear. All patients, therefore, are required to take daily hot baths, eat plenty of wholesome food, without respect to its being fish, flesh, fowl or vegetable, and to spend as much time as possible in the open air and sunshine.

Among other improvements planned for the near future are a chapel, a refrigerating plant, another 20 room cottage for female patients, a steam laundry, plant, fire department and drainage. Screening of all the houses will follow as soon as sufficient funds are in hand. Every effort of the board of control is being directed toward making the home a home indeed for the afflicted lepers.

Many a woman acquires a reputation for beauty which does not belong to her.

Sultan's Tastes and Hobbies.

The sultan of Turkey, when a prince, learned carpentry and became an expert in it. One of his first acts as a sovereign was to establish a complete joiner's factory at Yildiz, in which he superintended the manufacture of all sorts of furniture, mostly designed by himself," says Home Notes.

"He has few recreations, but if there is one thing above another that gives him pleasure it is music. He likes to play the piano, and can play from memory airs from 'Il Trovatore,' but he is a very poor performer. He has a son who gives promise of developing into a really brilliant violinist, and he has taken care to give the lad the best tuition possible.

"Abdul Hamid is very fond of animals. He has over 200 horses in his stables, and among them a beautiful cream Arab, the gift of the czar. He has also an aviary and a number of deer."

A Conversation-Maker.

"I don't know what the trouble is," said the hostess in a tone of great annoyance. "My guests seem very distant and unsocial. I wish I could think of some way to start them talking to one another."

"That's easily done," answered Miss Clever. "Is there a musician present?"

"Yes."

"Get him to play or sing something."—Judge.
